VARIYAN KUNNATHU KUNJAHAMMED HAJI - INDIA
(1883 - 20 January 1922)

When the Mappila leader, Variyan Kunnathu Kunjahammed Haji was executed by the British colonial authorities in 1922, the Manchester Guardian covered his death in a news article titled 'The Man Who Would Be King.'

Raising an army of 75,000, Variyan Kunnathu Kunjahammed Haji, one of the leaders of the Mappilas rose up in revolt against the British colonial rulers in 1921 in the south Indian state of Kerala, resulting in one of the largest uprisings against colonial rule in India since 1857 called the Malabar rebellion. Over the course of the next six months, the British Army was faced with a determined guerrilla resistance movement seizing control of and governing an area of 5200 sq. km. They established “Khilafat Kingdoms,” governorates, issued passports, collected taxes and implemented a parallel law and order system, before the rebellion was brutally crushed by the British army.

Variyan Kunnathu Kunjahammed Haji was captured and executed on 20th January 1922.

MUHAMMAD IBN ABD AL-KARIM AL-KHATTABI - MOROCCO

(1882 - 6th February 1963)

It is said that when the famed communist revolutionary, Che Guevara met Sheikh Muhammad ibn Abd al-Karim al-Khattabi in Cairo in 1960, he requested the Sheikh “I have come to Cairo specifically to learn from you.”

Sheikh Abd al-Karim was the leader of a large-scale Berber resistance movement in the Rif, a large Berber-speaking area in northern Morocco in 1920 against Spanish and French colonial forces.

King of Spain, Alfonso XIII, sent an army consisting of 60,000 soldiers from Madrid under the command of general Manuel Fernández Silvestre to battle the army of Sheikh Abd al-Karim which numbered less than half of the Spanish army. The two armies met at Anwal, a small town in Morocco, on 22nd June 1921, where the Spanish suffered one of their worst military defeats. In 1925 a combined Spanish-French army using chemical weapons waged an intense campaign against the population of Rif for 10 months resulting in the surrender of Sheikh Abd al-Karim in 1926. He was exiled and imprisoned by the French for 20 years and he died in 1963.

AHMED URABI - EGYPT
(31st March 1841 - 21st September 1911)

Ahmed 'Urabi the first political and military leader in Egypt to rise from the Fellahin (peasant class) and was instrumental in raising the banner of revolt against Anglo-French colonialism. 'Urabi was born a peasant in a small town and was the son of a village leader. He was educated at Al-Azhar university, and he later enlisted in the army and moved up quickly through the ranks of the army. Egypt in the 1870s was under foreign influence, corruption, misgovernment, and in a state of financial ruin, and the British had deposed off the then ruler of Egypt Isma'il Pasha.

Rallying supporters and allies and refusing direct orders, 'Urabi was able to revolt successfully and form an elected government in which he was appointed as the minister of war. This new government threatened European interests in the region and by 1882 the British and French laid plans to oppose 'Urabi. When 'Urabi refused to secede, the British bombarded the city and landed troops. The British defeated the Egyptian army in a surprise attack at the Battle of Tel-el-Kebir and occupied Cairo. 'Urabi was forced to surrender and was subsequently tried for treason and exiled to Ceylon (Sri Lanka). In modern Egypt Urabi is hailed as an Egyptian patriot and a national hero.

MALE REBELLION OF 1835 - BRAZIL

In Ramadan of 1835, a group of enslaved African Muslim scholars in Salvador of Bahia, Brazil organized one of the largest recorded slave rebellions in the Americas. The history of Muslim rebellion against enslavement in the Americas dates back to 1522, when enslaved Muslims of Wolof origin revolted in Santo Domingo, twelve years after the formal commencement of the transatlantic slave trade. On the nights of January 24 and 25, 1835, African-born slaves and freed people in Salvador da Bahia, in northeastern Brazil, staged a revolt to free themselves from slavery and establish an Islamic state. The Male rebellion was one of the most significant urban slave revolts in the Americas, despite its brief duration.

Military and police forces overcame the rebels after hours of armed fighting for control of the city, killing around seventy Africans. In the aftermath of the rebellion, many were imprisoned and sentenced to death and more than 500 Muslim Africans were expelled from Brazil and returned to African countries.

TIPU SULTAN - INDIA

(20 November 1750 - 4 May 1799)

Tipu Sultan also famously known as the 'Tiger of Mysore' was the ruler of the Kingdom of Mysore (southern India) from 1782 to 1799. A scholar, soldier and poet, Tipu Sultan was the eldest son of Sultan Hyder Ali of Mysore and his wife Fatima Fakhr-un-Nisa. Tipu Sultan ascended the throne of his father after his death in 1782, following the Second Mysore War, to then rule the Kingdom of Mysore. Tipu Sultan was a benevolent and instrumental leader, whose constant valiant efforts against the British oppression in southern India resulted in his name being etched in the annals of history.

Tipu Sultan and his father Hyder Ali proved successful in defeating the British in the First Mysore War in 1766 and in the Second Mysore War of 1782. However, in the Fourth Anglo-Mysore war of 1798, Tipu Sultan was eventually defeated and was martyred defending his capital Srirangapattana on 4th May 1799. Tipu Sultan is buried alongside his father and mother in his capital city of Srirangapattana.

IMAM SHAMIL - CHECHNYA

(26th June 1797 - 4th February 1871)

Imam Shamil was one of the great Muslim heroes of the 19th Century. He united the Muslims of the Caucasus (now Dagestan and Chechnya) by waging a 25-year campaign of armed resistance against oppressive imperialist Russian rule in the mid-19th century. He had earlier studied in Damascus under Sheikh Khalid Al-Baghdadi.

Imam Shamil was elected as the third Imam of Dagestan in 1834, and under his leadership he brought together the various Muslim tribes and clans across the Caucasus. Raising a small army, they battled the Imperial Russia army for the next 25 years, inflicting many defeats on their mighty enemy without outside help. Eventually a Russian army numbering 70,000 was sent to fight Imam Shamil and his forces at the Gunip mountains. After heavy losses and with no access to food or ammunition Imam Shamil had to sign a peace treaty with the Russians. After 10 years in captivity, Imam Shamil was allowed to perform Hajj and he breathed his last in Medina and is buried in the Jannatul Baqi cemetery.

MAJI MAJI REBELLION - TANZANIA

(July 1905 - August 1907)

The Maji Maji rebellion, sometimes called the Maji Maji War, that took place in Tanganyika was the most significant Muslim challenge to German colonial rule in Africa during the brief period when Germany had African colonies. The rebellion lasted two years and covered over 10,000 square miles. When Germany established its control over Tanganyika by 1898, it imposed a particularly violent regime in order to control the population.

A Muslim mystic sheikh, Kinjikitile Ngwale, emerged, who claimed to be able to defeat the Germans through “Maji Maji,” which means “sacred water.” Thus, armed with arrows, spears, and doused with Maji Maji water, his followers initiated the rebellion against the Germans. The rebellion spread throughout the colony, eventually involving 20 different ethnic groups all of whom wished to dispel the German colonizers, as such it was the first significant example of interethnic cooperation in the battle against colonial control. Eventually the rebellion was crushed by the German army through resort to brutal and inhuman tactics resulting in more than 75,000 deaths.

SHEIKH OMAR AL - MUKHTAR - LIBYA
(20th August 1862 - 16th September 1931)

Sheikh Omar Al-Mukhtar Muhammad bin Farhat al Manifi, known by his people as 'The Lion of the Desert' was a Libyan leader who fought against Italian colonialism in Libya. Sheikh Omar Al-Mukhtar belonged to the Senussi Sufi order and eventually became its leader.

Years before his war against the Italians, Sheikh Al-Mukhtar had also fought the British colonial army on the Egyptian-Libyan border, and he also fought the French in Chad in 1900. Sheikh Omar Al-Mukhtar led numerous successful battles against the Italian forces affecting their morale. On 11th September 1931, the Italians captured Sheikh Omar al-Mukhtar in battle, and he was martyred when they executed him on 14th September 1922. Today Sheikh Omar al-Mukhtar is celebrated as a hero and an inspiration to Muslims all over the world who remember him by his words in response to the leaders of the Italian occupation when they demanded that he surrender: "We will not surrender, we will win or we will die."

AMIR 'ABDUL QÂDIR AL-JAZA'IRI - ALGERIA

(6th September 1808 - 26th May 1883)

Amir Abdul Qadir al-Jazairi was an Algerian Islamic scholar and leader who led a collective resistance against the mid-19th century French colonial invasion of Algeria. He had memorized the Holy Qur'an by the age of 14 and had studied the Islamic religious sciences as well as subjects such as philosophy, medicine, and mathematics.

Amir Abdul Qadir commenced a 15-year struggle during which he often kept the French armies at bay through skilful guerrilla tactics, strategic negotiation and treaties, and visionary state-building. He was known for his compassion, even to his enemies and at one point, he released his French prisoners because he did not have the means to feed them adequately. But, by 1847, due to ruthless, scorched-earth tactics of the French, he was captured, imprisoned and later exiled to Turkey.

He would garner worldwide attention again in 1860 when a conflict between the Druze and Maronite Christians spread to Damascus and he was instrumental in saving 10,000 Christians. The New York Times described him as "one of the few great men of the century," and his legacy lives on today even in the United States, where the town of Elkader in the state of Iowa is named after him.

ZAINUDDIN MAKHDOOM I - INDIA (1465-1522) & ZAINUDDIN MAKHDOOM II - INDIA (1531-1583)

Sheikh Zainuddin Makhdoom bin Sheikh Al Qazi Ali, also known as Sheikh Zainuddin Makhdoom I was an eminent scholar and author of Tahrid Ahlil Iman' Ala Jihadi' Abdati Sulban ((Inspiring the Believers for Struggle against the Worshippers of the Cross) hailing from the Malabar region of the south Indian state of Kerala. The Portuguese arrived in Kerala in 1498 and the Tahrid Ahlil Iman is reported to have been written in the first decade of Portuguese colonial presence in Malabar and hence is considered to be one of the earliest anti-colonial resistance literatures from the Muslim world. His son Sheikh Abdul Aziz led the resistance against the Portuguese in 1571. The poetic verses of the Tahrid mobilized the indigenous Mappilas to wage resistance against the Portuguese and laid the foundation for future mobilization and resistance against the Dutch and the British.

Sheikh Ahmad Zainuddin Makhdoom bin Sheikh Muhammad Al Gazzali, also known as Sheikh Zainuddin Makhdoom II, and was the grandson of Sheikh Zainuddin Makhdoom I was a renowned scholar, author and historian and is well known for his treatise Tuhfathul Mujahideen Fi Akhbar ul Burthugalin (Gift to the warriors of faith about some of the deeds of the Portuguese). The Tuhfat was written to motivate Muslims for the struggle against the invading Portuguese and is considered to be one of the earliest anti-colonial manifestos and has been reviewed as a study in the liberation theology of Islam.

SHEIKH IZZUDIN QASAM - PALESTINE
(19th December 1882 - 20th November 1935)

Sheikh Izzudin Qasam was the Muslim scholar and leader who inspired the resistance against British colonialism and Zionism in Palestine. He was educated at al-Azhar University, where he gained a reputation for piety and scholarship. He had earlier rallied people against the Italian invasion of Libya. He was also a key figure in the 1921 Syrian revolt against French colonial authorities. After the French besieged Damascus, Sheikh Izzudin fled to Haifa, then under the British Mandate, where he was involved in preaching as an imam in the Istiqlal mosque.

He travelled across Palestine speaking to and encouraging the people to resist British colonialism and Zionism. He raised a guerilla army called the Al-Kaff al-Aswad (Black Hand) and had early success in fighting them. In training his men, Sheikh Izzudin stressed that maintaining good character and piety was of paramount importance. These virtues, he claimed, were prerequisites to being disciplined and pious soldiers. In November 1935, the British army launched a manhunt for Sheikh Izzudin and in the ensuing battle, he was martyred. His funeral in Haifa witnessed the largest political gathering at that time to which David Ben Gurion remarked "now for the first time, the Arabs have seen someone offer his life for the cause. This will give the Arabs the moral strength they lack."

SAYYID MOHAMMED ABDULLAH HASSAN - SOMALIA
(April 7th 1856 - December 21th 1920)

Sheikh Mohammed Abdullah Hassan, also known as Sayyid Mohammad by his followers, was a Dervish scholar, hafiz, and poet, who for 20 years led the resistance to the British and Italian colonialism in Somalia. Britain established their Protectorate in Somalia in 1884, where they faced competition from France and Italy.

As the British began their Protectorate, Sayyid Mohammed began to resist their colonial rule. In several poems and speeches, he urged his fellow Somalians to rise up in resistance against occupation. Forming a multi-clan movement and raising an army from among his followers, he resisted both the British and Italian armies and formed Somaliland, and for more than 20 years he was able to sustain his movement against colonialism. In 1920, the British struck the Dervish settlements with a well-coordinated air and land attack and inflicted a stunning defeat. Following the defeat, Sayyid Mohammed had to flee to Ethiopia where he died at the age of 64. Owing to his influence in Somali nationalism, he was called the 'Father of Somali Nationalism. In fact, the Ottoman empire named him the 'Emir of the Somali.'
